Introduction

The University of Limerick (UL) is an independent, energetic, enterprising and internationally focused institution with over 13,000 students and 1,300 staff. UL has a proud record of innovation and excellence in education, research and scholarship and is renowned for providing an outstanding student experience. The dynamic, entrepreneurial and pioneering values that drive UL's mission and strategy ensure a focus on local, national and international engagement and connectivity.

It is UL policy that students whom the University places or makes arrangements for placement at a relevant organisation as part of the student's course of education, training or scheme, including any internship scheme, where such placement requires the student to participate in 'relevant work or activities' relating to children or vulnerable adults, must be vetted in accordance with this policy. The University must receive either a vetting disclosure from the National Vetting Bureau or confirmation from the relevant organisation that the relevant organisation has received a vetting disclosure from the National Vetting Bureau in respect of the student. If a student's placement involves 'relevant work or activities' relating to children or other vulnerable persons, the provisions of this policy apply whether or not the student has unsupervised access to or assumes a position of responsibility with a child or vulnerable adult. This is in compliance with the National Vetting Bureau (Children and Vulnerable Persons) Act 2012 (as amended)¹, hereafter referred to as the 2012 Act.

Programmes with a Vetting Entry Requirement

The placement of students with external organisations is an integral part of many UL programmes of study. The placement element of some of these programmes requires students to participate in 'relevant work or activities' relating to children or vulnerable adults. Appendix 1 outlines in full detail the meaning of 'relevant work or activities' as defined in the 2012 Act. Appendix 2 lists the UL programmes that have been designated by the University as having a placement element that requires students to participate in such 'relevant work or activities'.

To ensure the public are protected and to give public confidence in relation to the suitability of such students, students on the designated programmes and applicants who have been offered a place on a designated programme must be vetted in accordance with the provisions of this policy. If a student commences studying at UL, they will be given provisional registration status until the vetting procedure described in this policy has been fully completed and the University is satisfied that the student is suitable to undertake the programme in question. Accordingly, even though the student has commenced studying at UL and is a member of the campus community for the purposes of UL's Code of Conduct, the student's registration will not be confirmed by the University until the vetting procedure described in this policy has been fully completed. Once the vetting procedure has been completed and where no issue of concern has been raised, the student's registration on the programme of study will be confirmed. Where issues of concern arise and it is subsequently determined that the student does not meet the requirements of the programme, the student's registration on the programme of study will be terminated and the student may be asked to leave the University.

In relation to an applicant to or student on a designated programme, UL may enter into an agreement with another relevant organisation whereby the University agrees to accept confirmation from that organisation that the organisation has received a vetting disclosure from the National Vetting Bureau for the applicant/student and that the applicant/student meets the vetting requirements of the organisation. Provisionally enrolled students who do not satisfy the relevant organisation's vetting requirements will not have their UL registration on the programme confirmed. This means that the student cannot continue on the programme and may be asked to leave the University.

Programmes with No Vetting Entry Requirement

The University recognises that students who are engaged in programmes of study (including research programmes) that do not have vetting as an entry requirement may, as part of their programme have an opportunity to engage in 'relevant work or activities' with children or vulnerable adults. In such cases the module coordinator or supervisor shall ensure that such students successfully complete the vetting procedure before the student commences the 'relevant work or activities' with children or vulnerable adults. If a student is not successfully vetted, the student cannot participate in any 'relevant work or activities'.

Volunteer Activities

The University of Limerick supports and encourages students to engage with communities through volunteer activities during their period of study. Volunteering contributes to students' personal development as well as developing new skills and fostering social responsibility. Students who engage in volunteer activities that involve 'relevant work or activities' that are either recognised or coordinated by the University must undergo vetting prior to engaging in any such 'relevant work or activities'.

The Act 2012 requires all voluntary groups and charities engaged in 'relevant work or activities' to ensure that their volunteers are vetted. If a student who has not been vetted in accordance with this policy engages in a volunteer activity that is not coordinated by the University and who wishes the volunteer activity to be recognised for the purposes of the President's Award or other UL award, the student must be vetted in accordance with the terms of this policy prior to being eligible for the President's Award or other UL award.

The Role of Other Relevant Organisations

For the purposes of the 2012 Act, the University of Limerick is a 'relevant organisation' (as defined in the 2012 Act – see Appendix 1). Appendix 3 provides a template agreement between UL and another relevant organisation in which UL agrees to share with the organisation the outcome of the University's vetting process and to confirm with the organisation that the applicant/student meets or does not meet the vetting requirements of the University. Appendix 4 provides a template agreement between UL and another relevant organisation in which UL agrees with the organisation that the organisation will carry out the vetting process on its own behalf and that the organisation will confirm with UL that a vetting disclosure has been received by the organisation from the National Vetting

Bureau in relation to an applicant/student and that the applicant/student meets or does not meet the vetting requirements of the organisation. Appendix 3 and Appendix 4 are published, maintained and updated as required by the Office of Vice President Academic & Registrar (VPA&R).

The Vetting Procedure

The VPA&R or his/her nominee is responsible for vetting applicants/students in the circumstances outlined in this policy. In accordance with the vetting procedure outlined in Appendix 5, the Office of the VPA&R will review vetting proofs of identity (Appendix 5), applications and vetting disclosures (if any) made by an applicant/student and by the National Vetting Bureau. The disclosures received by the University will be reviewed to establish what risk, if any, these disclosures have with respect to the suitability of the applicant/student to undertake, as the case may be, the programme of study, placement or volunteer activities in question.

As identified in Appendix 5, the applicant/student has the right to appeal should they be deemed by the VPA&R or his/her nominee to be not suitable for the programme, placement or volunteer activities in question.

The University of Limerick establishes the suitability of students and applicants in the circumstances outlined in this policy by considering verified student declarations on Garda vetting forms. Appendix 5 provides a general outline of the steps involved in (i) making a determination in respect of the suitability of a student to undertake a programme, placement or volunteer activity and (ii) appealing a determination of non-suitability. A general description of the vetting procedure and key points to note about the procedure are set out below.

Vetting subjects complete a formal Garda vetting application/invitation form. In the form, the subject gives written authorisation for the National Vetting Bureau to disclose details relating to the subject held on record by An Garda Síochána to the University in respect of specified information, prosecutions, pending or completed, successful or not, and convictions recorded in the State or elsewhere. The VPA&R or his/her nominee firstly considers disclosures made by a student or applicant (as applicable) on the Garda vetting form.

These disclosures might give cause for concern. If, in the initial opinion of the VPA&R or his/her nominee, the disclosures imply that the student or applicant might not be suitable for the programme of study, placement or volunteer activity in question, the VPA&R or his/her nominee may decide (at his/her discretion) to interview or seek additional information or declarations from the student or applicant. If, following any such consideration, the VPA&R or his/her nominee is of the opinion that the student is not suitable, the VPA&R or his/her nominee will inform the applicant/student that the applicant/student is not suitable for the programme.

UL employees who are appointed by UL as authorised liaison persons submit the vetting forms to the National Vetting Bureau for processing. Where it has been determined that an applicant/student does not meet the vetting requirements of UL, the University reserves the right to consider whether or not a vetting form obtained from the applicant/student should be submitted to the National Vetting Bureau.

Once processed, the vetting results are sent by the National Vetting Bureau directly to the liaison person who submitted the application in respect of the individual. The VPA&R or his/her nominee then gives further consideration to the vetting disclosures received and may decide (at his/her discretion) to interview or seek additional information or declarations from the student or applicant.

Applicants/students who have resided outside of Ireland for periods longer than six months after reaching 16 years of age are required to submit police clearance certificates from all jurisdictions where they resided. Applicants/students from outside Ireland, both EU and non-EU, are required to provide police clearance certificates from jurisdictions where they resided for periods longer than six months. These certificates might contain vetting disclosures or other information about the status of the applicant/student that may be taken into account by the VPA&R or his/her nominee. The VPA&R or his/her nominee reserves the right to interview or seek additional information or declarations from an applicant/student to determine the suitability of the applicant/student to undertake the programme of study, placement or volunteer activity in question.

Once the vetting disclosures and any required police clearance certificates have been received, the VPA&R or his/her nominee will consider the disclosures. As soon as is practicable, the University will make available a copy of the vetting disclosures to the vetting subject (including any disclosures contained in police clearance certificates that are required to be submitted in accordance with the terms of this policy).

Further general information about the National Vetting Bureau vetting service is available from the Garda website. If you have any queries relating to the vetting procedure, please contact the Office of the VPA&R at the University of Limerick or visit the UL Student Vetting web page (<http://www.ulsites.ul.ie/executive/university-limerick-student-vetting-process>).

Duration of Vetting

The University of Limerick reserves the right to require an applicant or student who has been successfully vetted to repeat the vetting procedure at any stage during the application process or during the student's programme of study. The University is not obliged to give the applicant or student a reason for having to repeat the procedure. This means that the vetting procedure described in this policy may be re-applied to an applicant or student. This is to further ensure the public's protection and give public confidence in the suitability of students placed in these positions. In particular, a student who takes a leave of absence or makes disclosures as set out below or in respect of whom information arises that gives cause for concern in relation to their suitability to the programme of study, placement or volunteer activity in question may be required to repeat the vetting process. Where disclosures are made, they will be reviewed to establish what risk, if any, arises as to the suitability of the applicant or student to undertake, as the case may be, the programme, any part of the programme, the placement or the volunteer activities in question.

Successfully undergoing vetting, including repeat vetting, when required by UL to do so, is a condition (subject to their right of appeal) of a student's continued registration on their programme of study or their participation in ‘relevant work or activities’ relating to children or vulnerable adults.

Duty of Disclosure

An applicant/student who has been vetted successfully is required to disclose to the University (through the Office of the Registrar), at the earliest possible opportunity, notice of any matter that, if known at the time of the original vetting, would have been considered by the University to be part of its review of disclosures. Such matters include, without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, any investigation or inquiry by any civil or criminal authority in any jurisdiction, including authorities such as An Garda Síochána, the Nursing and Midwifery Board of Ireland, the Teaching Council and the Medical Council; any notice to prosecute (or equivalent) in any jurisdiction; or any conviction that occurs during the student’s programme of study, including any circumstances where a court applies to provisions of the Probation Act 1907 (or equivalent). Students are advised that failure to disclose such matters will be considered by the University to be a serious issue and may result in the student being temporarily suspended from their programme or part of programme (including any placement) or being referred to the disciplinary process pursuant to the University’s Code of Conduct (as specified in chapter 6 of the Handbook of Academic Regulations and Procedures).

Suspension of Registration

UL reserves the right to temporarily suspend a student from a programme or part of a programme of study (including any placement) until the University is satisfied that the student is suitable to work with children or vulnerable groups, as the case may be, or until an alternative course of action is decided upon by the University. Acceptance by an applicant or student of this right of suspension reserved by the University is a condition of the applicant’s entry or the student’s continued registration on their programme of study.

The University also reserves the right to temporarily suspend a student from engaging in volunteer activities until the University is satisfied that the student is suitable to work with children or vulnerable groups or until an alternative course of action is decided upon by the University. Acceptance by an applicant or student of this right of suspension reserved by the University is a condition of the applicant’s entry or the student’s continued registration on their programme of study. Without prejudice to the generality of any other provision of this policy, the applicant/student may be required to repeat vetting.

Data Protection

Under the Data Protection Acts, information about the commission or alleged commission of an offence by a person falls within the definition of sensitive personal data. Accordingly, this information is subject to the Data Protection Acts and the University’s data protection policy.

In cases where vetting subjects have been prosecuted, notwithstanding the court outcome in respect of prosecution, the factual details contained in the resultant court outcome are disclosed to the liaison persons. Instances where, in the court outcome, the court applies the provisions of the Probation Act 1907, the charges are dismissed. However, to avail of the provisions of the Probation Act 1907, the case is marked as “proved”. While individuals often consider that they have no formal criminal record, when a person gives a written authorisation for vetting to be conducted, the liaison person in the University of Limerick is informed of the charge as a “non-conviction” rather than a formal conviction.

If an applicant or student is under the age of 18, a parent or guardian must give their consent for the applicant or student to be vetted.

The original vetting application form is returned by the National Vetting Bureau to the liaison person in UL. Except in exceptional circumstances, vetting disclosures are retained for the duration of the programme of study plus one year, after which they are deleted. In the case of further queries or issues being raised in relation to a vetting disclosure, the reference number and the date of the disclosure can be retained on file and can be checked with An Garda Síochána. Vetting information is not shared with other organisations but information received as part of the vetting process may be supplied to the vetting subject on request. If a student has satisfied the University’s vetting requirements and with the consent of the student, such information can be disclosed to a third party, but vetting disclosures will not be disclosed other than in accordance with the law.

Refer to the University of Limerick’s data protection policy webpage for more information.

UL’s Right to Review and Amend This Policy

This policy may be reviewed from time to time by the University of Limerick. The University reserves the right to unilaterally amend this policy from time to time, and such amendment shall become effective upon the publication of the amended policy on the University’s website. Upon such publication, the new amended policy shall apply to all students and applicants to all programmes of study.
